

SKIN-TO-SKIN WRAP

CLOSENESS IN COMPLETE SAFETY

The KODODO® carrier wrap is intended for low-weight babies (4 kg max.). It is worn like a top, is available in sizes S, M, L, XL, XXL, and is used in neonatology, in mother-infant rooms or in maternity units.

The newborn infant is placed in the skin-to-skin position in accordance with the method developed in the WHO guide “Kangaroo Mother Care – A PracticalGuide”.

The close “skin-to-skin” contact between mother and infant helps soothe babies who reconnect with familiar references (mother’s heartbeat and smell). It helps maintain the newborn infant’s temperature and facilitates breastfeeding on demand.

The baby is placed in an upright position, between the mother’s breasts, chest-to-chest, legs extended in the “frog” position. The baby’s head is turned to one side in a slightly extended position. The top of the wrap is just under the baby’s ear. This slightly extended head position keeps the airways open and allows eye-to-eye contact between the mother and the baby. Bending and flexing postures should be avoided.

When correctly positioned in a wrap of the appropriate size, the newborn infant can remain in place several hours a day. The mother can eat, read, or engage in any other activity provided that the baby continues to be correctly supported in the wrap. The habit is rapidly acquired and the baby can suckle on demand.

SKIN-TO-SKIN WRAP

CLOSENESS IN COMPLETE SAFETY

The carrier wrap facilitates the practice of skin-to-skin contact in neonatology wards and “kangaroo units”.

The resulting mother -infant closeness promotes multi-sensorial contact between mother and infant and facilitates breast feeding.

When positioned correctly according to the “kangaroo method”, as described in the WHO Practical Guide 2004, the infant is stimulated by his mother’s movements and achieves good respiratory stability.
